

Bunny digging box

Bunnies are naturally big on digging and burrowing, so a digging box is a great way to provide stimulation and encourage foraging behaviour.

You will need a box with sides at least as tall as the bunny's head when standing on all 4 feet – if the bunny is not a big jumper or struggles with arthritis, then the sides should be lower. You can use a sturdy cardboard box or plastic tub/container big enough for the bunny to get into and move around in (bigger is more fun!)

To fill your bunny's diggy box, you can use:

- Soil (clear of bugs, plant matter, very dry)
- Finely shredded paper or newspaper
- Timothy/eragrostis/mountain hay
- Or a combination of the latter 2.

Distributing dried herbs or other small treats amongst the filling will keep your bun busier for longer!
